

Burwick beach REVISITED! 2014

On Monday 20th May 2013, primaries 3, 4, 5 6 and 7 walked the 3 miles (mainly up hill!) to a local area of outstanding beauty to clean up the beach. As you can see from the photos below, the beach was in a terrible state. The rubbish was all from the sea; passing ships, local fish farming industry and storms all play their part in causing what looked like a rubbish tip instead of a beautiful beach. This year, we are going to return to Burwick beach and carry out another Redd Up. We hope that we don't have to clear as much rubbish as last time and we definitely hope we don't find the quantity of mussel pegs that we collected last year. Either way, we will be contacting our local mussel farmers.
